Invest in your pet's golden years with regular check-ups, extending their life through early detection.

What is a wellness check?

This is a medical check up designed for senior cats to allow early detection of conditions that may arise as your cat gets older, in many cases before symptoms develop.

A complete physical examination - weight, heart and lung function, temperature, eyes and ears as well as skin.

Blood tests - for liver and kidney functions, anaemia and general health.

X-ray - to check for skeletal deformities and tumours.

Ultrasound - of the abdomen to focus on the liver, kidneys, bladder and spleen.

Why senior cats should have a wellness check?

Often by the time symptoms are noticed, a disease is already well established.

Common conditions are:

- organ failure
- joint issues
- dental decay
- diabetes
- cancer
- hypertension
- cognitive disorders

The earlier these conditions are diagnosed, the greater the chance of successful treatment.

At what age does a cat become a Senior?

A cat may be considered a Senior from the age of eleven

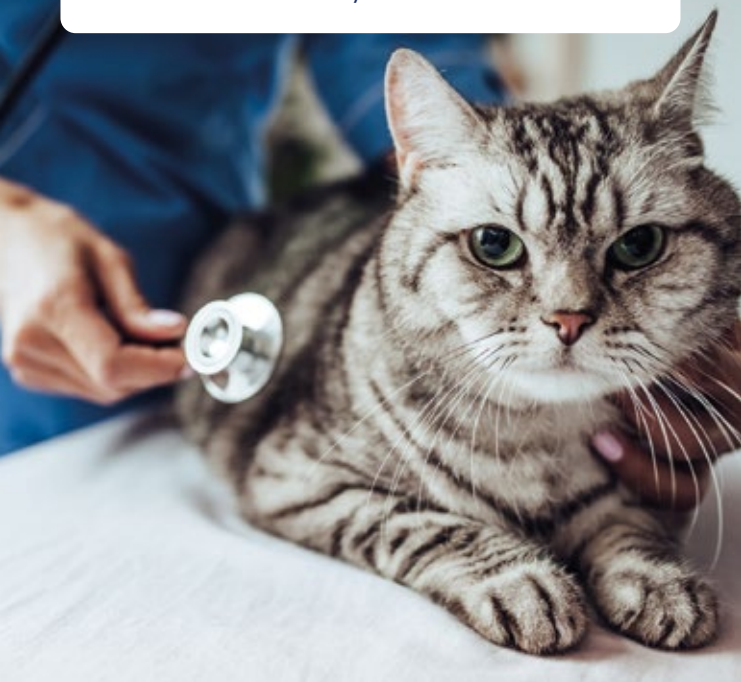

Like humans, cats will show signs as they age.

Signs of aging in cats may include:

- Changes in weight – either gain or loss
- Changes in behaviour and mobility
- No longer using a litter tray

How often should I bring my senior cat for a wellness check?

We recommend a minimum of every 6 months but your veterinarian may recommend more frequent checkups depending upon the age and current health of your cat.

EARLY DETECTION SAVES LIVES!
